

PLAY TO ANOTHER TIE GAME

Good Football by Punahou and Mailes.

LUCK SAVED THE
GREEN AND GOLD

Honors Were Even in the First Half But Punahou Had the Best in the Second.

Another great crowd witnessed the second tie football game of the season at Punahou on Saturday, there being when the game was at its height at least 1,500 people present. The day was an ideal one for the spectators, though had the gridiron been a trifle softer, it would have been greatly appreciated by the participants in the game.

The general opinion was that the Punahou Athletics would defeat the Mailes somewhat easily, this estimate of the result being based upon the 35 to 9 defeat of the Artillery by the Punahous and the tie played by the Mailes and the Honolulu a week ago.

The game ended in a tie, neither side scoring. In the first half neither had appreciably the best of it, but during the latter section of the game, the Punahous practically camped in their opponent's territory, and it was only the phenomenal luck which perched on the green and gold banner which averted a signal defeat.

The Mailes played a greatly improved and fairly heady game, while the Punahous as a rule relied on the weight behind their rushes and were handicapped to some extent in the matter of speed by said weight. They husbanded their strength in the first half by repeated punts, and these tactics stood them in good stead in the second half, when, at times, they fairly ran over their opponents.

F. Wright and Sam Johnson made the two sensational runs of the day, gaining 25 and 20 yards respectively. These runs were made through the Punahou line, and the crowd could not figure out how it was done. They occurred close together in the first half, and both players went through the wall of men like a streak, Wright being only just collared by Morse, who ran up behind him. In time to save a touchdown. There must have been a nice, large hole in the Punahou's line on both these occasions.

From whistle to whistle there was enough excitement to glut the most fastidious hankerer after action. In the first half the Punahous played a kicking game, the gains made by which, the Mailes offset by an exhibition of football which was fast, clever and in the main, correct. In the second term the Punahous relied on weight and mass plays. Time and time again they forced the Mailes toward their own goal, and more than once it looked as if nothing short of a miracle could prevent them scoring. The Mailes, however, played with an energy born of despair. They played to the last ounce that was left in them, and when things looked at their worst, managed by an opportune punt or a penalty in their favor, or through the good offices of their kahuna, to stem the tide of defeat and to commence the first snow at a comfortable distance from their own goal line.

George B. Carter umpired the game, and did his work fearlessly and impartially; his dispensation of penalties was a revelation.

When the game started the Punahous defended the Ewa and the Mailes the Waikiki goal. Soper kicks off for the Punahous, and the ball is returned to the 25-yard line. The Mailes make several small gains, and F. Wright punts to the 15-yard line, Morse takes the catch and is promptly downed. The Punahous gain a small kumana of ground, and not to be outdone at land-grabbing, the Mailes send the ball back to the Punahou's 20-yard line. Soper kicks to the Mailes' 40-yard line, and Kimball distinguishes himself by a notable tackle. The Mailes are now on their limit line. They lose the ball for some infringement of rules, and the Punahous soon have it on the Mailes' 40-yard line. Fast football is being played, and the Oahu College boys are cheering on the Punahous.

Carter penalizes the Mailes 10 yards for off side play. Punahous lose the ball on downs on the Mailes' 20-yard line, and their troubles don't come singly, for a penalty of 10 yards for off side play is immediately meted out to them. Prince Cupid nets 20 yards by successive plunges through the line, and a punt places the ball well in the Punahous' territory. Little Williamson receives it, and is downed on the 45-yard line. Soper out-kicks himself with a beauty, which is taken by Clark, who falls with the ball on his 20-yard line. The Mailes gain five yards by bucks, and then repeat little by little. The ball is punted to the Punahous' 45-yard line, and Williamson brings it back to the center of the field. The ball is forced to the Mailes' limit chalk mark, and Soper punts to within 10 yards of their goal. The Mailes make a series of small advances and lose the ball on downs on their 25-yard line.

"Now is the time for a touchdown," spoke the collegians. The Punahous have, so far, played a kicking game and have kept the ball in their opponents' territory. It looks as if they are saving their men for a bucking second half.

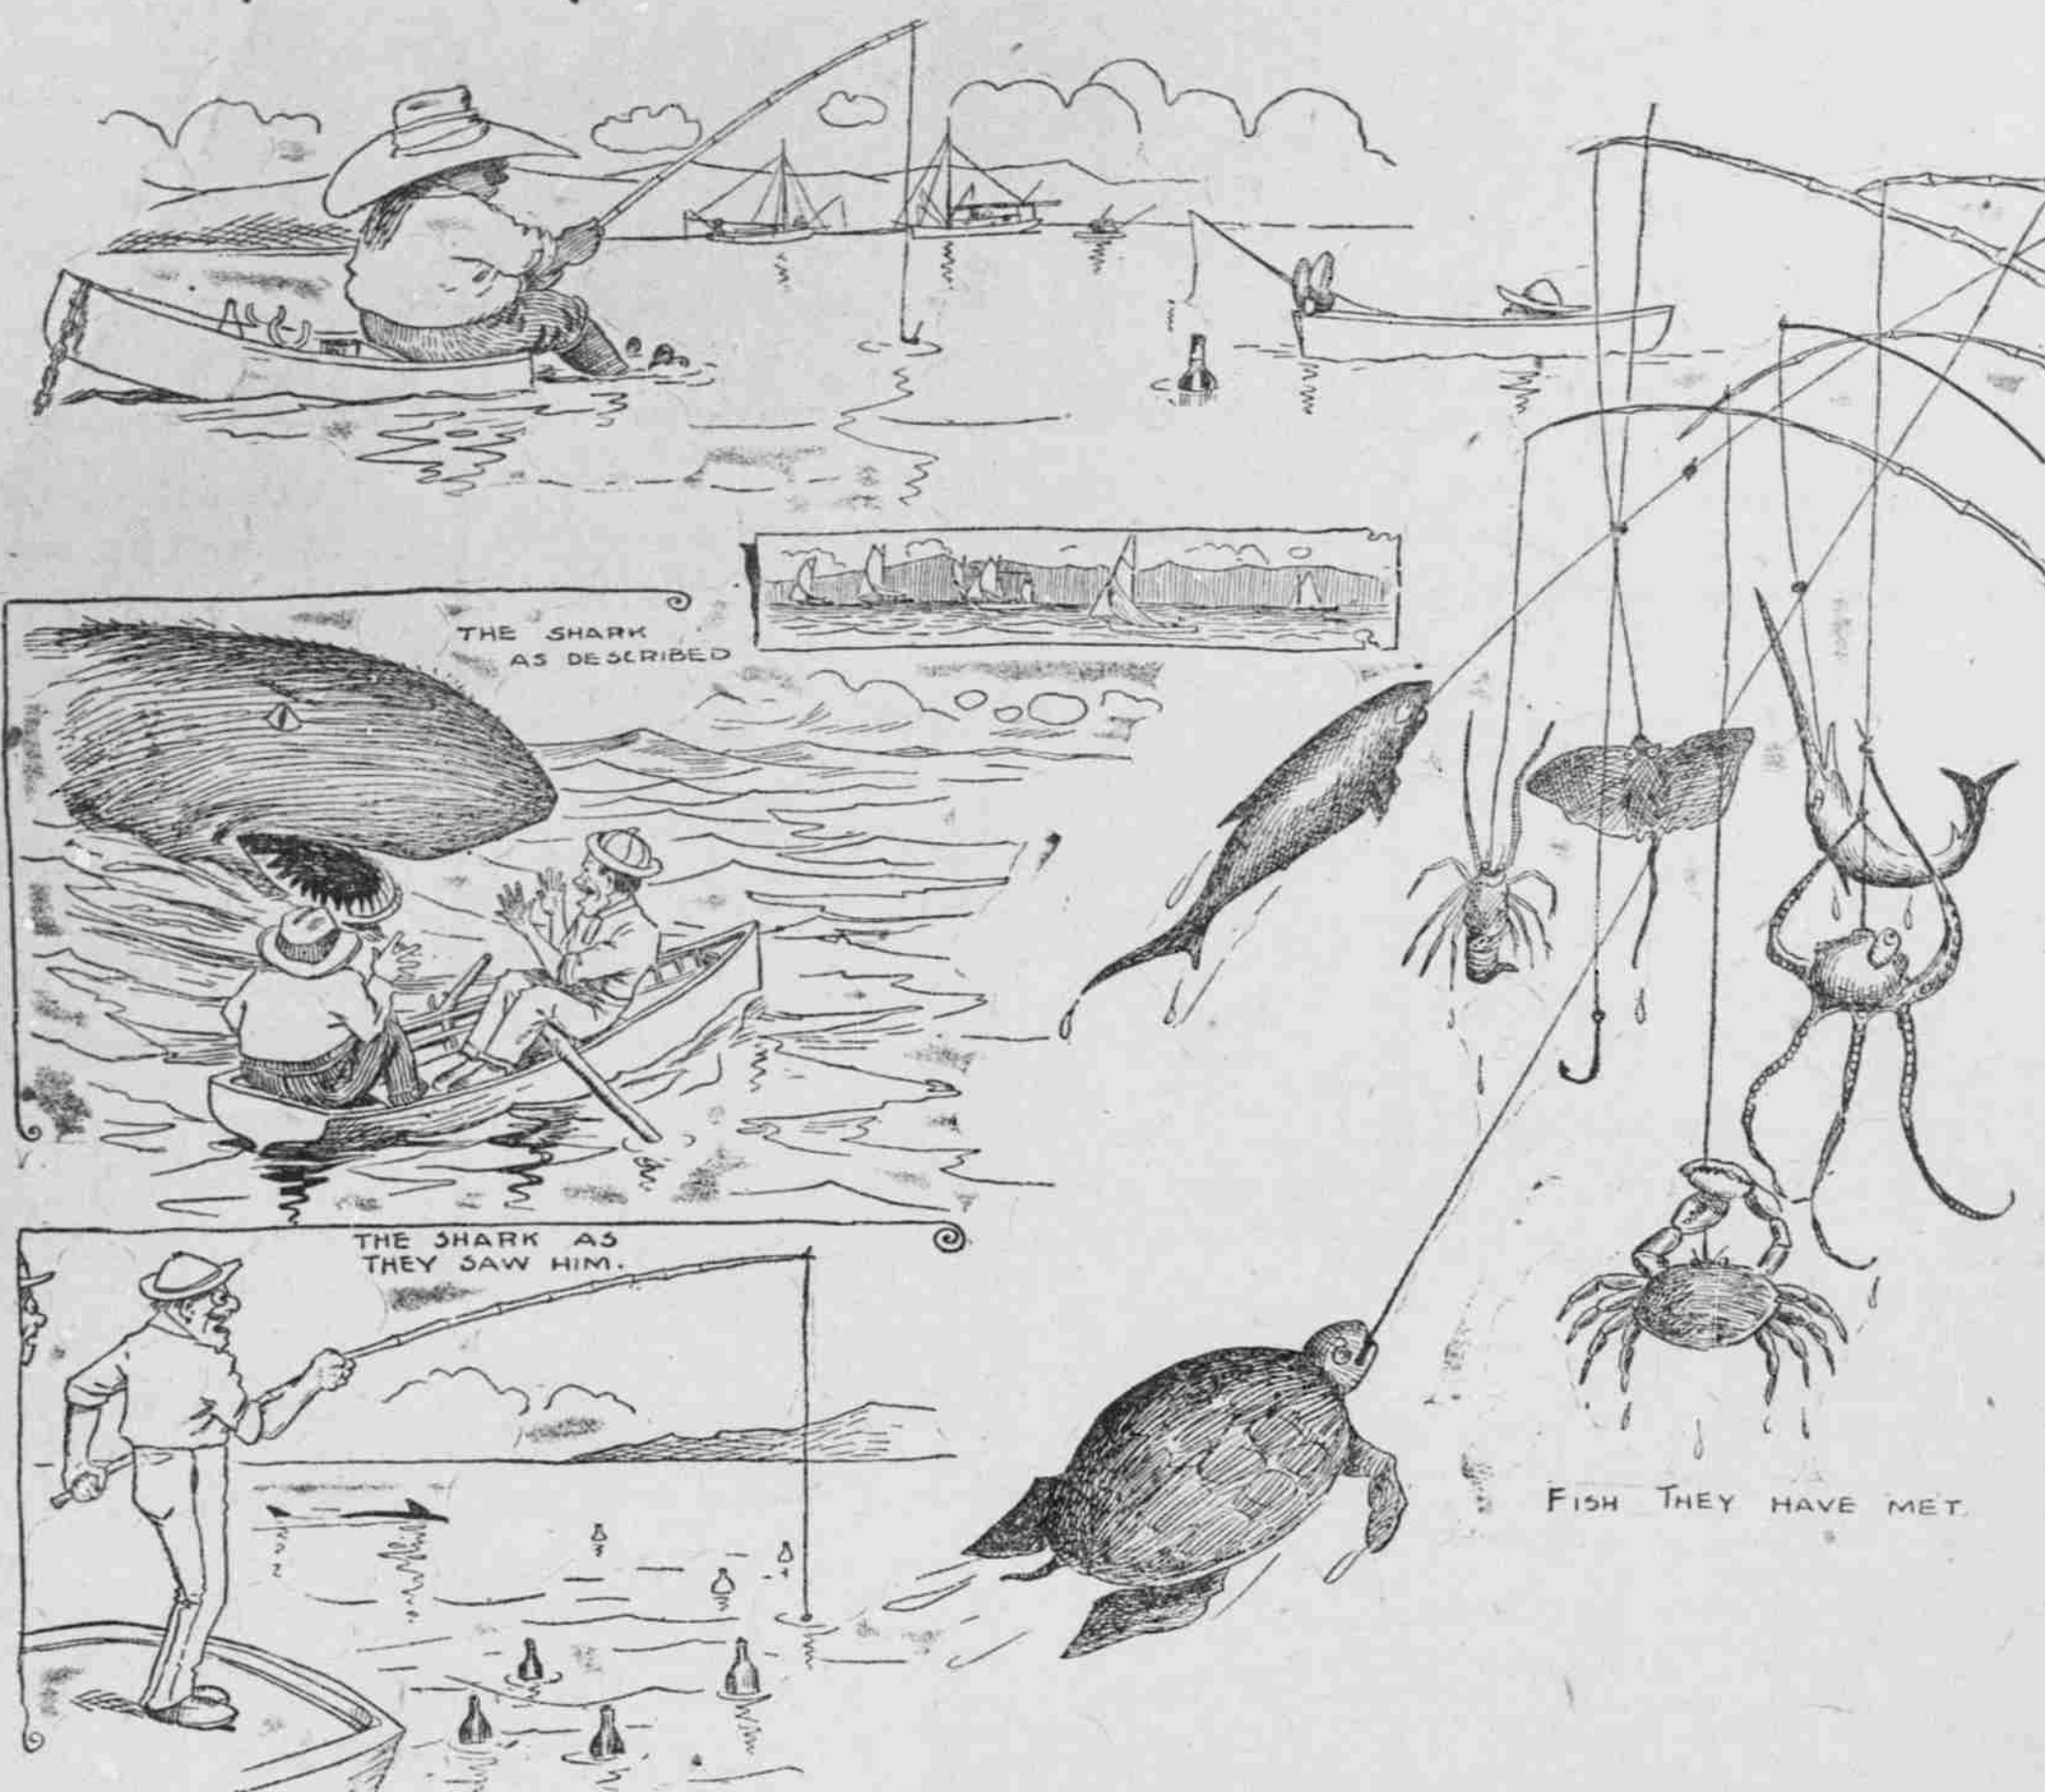

The Punahous gain nine yards by line bucks, and their weight seems to be telling. Their last few charges have been very vigorous with Soper the man with the ball. Mailes get possession on downs on their 15-yard line. The playing is very pretty at this stage of the game. A kick takes the ball well down the field, and then F. Wright goes through his hole in the line for 25 yards and is tackled by Morse when he looks very dangerous. Mailes lose the ball and Punahous make an immediately rally and are soon on their way toward the Mailes' territory again. They lose the leather on downs and Johnson duplicates Wright's run through the line, netting 30 yards, and being downed on the Punahous' 30-yard line. Punahous get the ball and advance it to their 30-yard line, when they have to surrender possession. Mailes press back their opponents to the 47, 42, 38 and 35-yard lines and lose the ball on their 35-yard whitewash.

Williamson makes a run to his 50-yard line, and his side gets set back 10 yards for interference with hands. The Mailes get the ball on the Punahous' 31-yard line, and after gaining a yard by a kick which is beautifully blocked by Robinson. The ball rebounds to the Punahous' 48-yard mark, and the half time whistle blows.

The game so far has been the best of the season, and quite fast. Honors are about even at the end of the half.

Prince Cupid retires and King takes his place. Cupid says that he has hurt his leg, and looks tired. Otherwise neither team is making any changes. The second half will be of 20 minutes' duration, or 5 minutes shorter than its predecessor. The Mailes are resting in the center of the field, gathering around their banner.

PEARL HARBOR SELACHIANS WOULD NOT BE INTERVIEWED.

The good ships Mary L. Gladys and Vi-ke set sail Saturday afternoon for the fishing grounds at Pearl Harbor. A large and varied assortment of engines of destruction were taken along, including giant powder, trolling gear, rat poison, harpoons and bird-lime.

The sharking fleet arrived off Pualoa about sundown, and threw out their mudhooks for the night, then, lines having been cast and snares spread, the jolly mariners made snug and spent a few hours before turning in, in pleasantly conversing of the habits and mode of life of the monsters of the deep.

Bright and early yesterday morning all hands turned out to inspect the catch, which consisted of a large crab, a squid, a crawfish and a small shark which had been hooked in the eye.

After breakfast fishing was resumed, but without any success worth discussing. Many were the theories advanced as to the absence or seeming diffidence of the sharks, the one finding the most favor being that they had not yet digested the glass taken aboard during the last cruise and regatta of the Hawaii Yacht Club.

Be that as it may, the great selachians fought shy of the lures presented for their benefit and gave the fishers the merry go-by. Along about noon the fishermen swallowed their resentment toward the sharks and declared an indefinite truce.

After lunch the fleet heaved anchor and set sail for the port of Honolulu. Looking back, after a while, to the scene of the diversion, a member of the hunt declares that he saw all the sharks of the lagoon playing water polo with bottles.

NOT A PRINCE AT ALL BUT ONLY A CURRY COOK

"Prince Rauli of Baluchistan," the mysterious Indian potentate who aroused the curiosity of London by his lavish and haughty reserve, and who was an object of great interest in Montreal, turns out upon his arrival in New York to be only a cook, the curry cook in Sherry's famous restaurant. He was recognized as soon as he struck the American metropolis as Joe Rauli Smith, whom hundreds of New Yorkers know well.

Joe, therefore, dropped his princely robes and told the story of his travels, which he considers a great joke. According to his narrative, his father, who was wealth, died, and Joe determined to travel. The large retinue he took with him, including the dancing girl there was so much talk about, led to the tale that he was the head of some principality somewhere. Joe had to make no effort to establish the claim himself. He kept mum and the newspapers did it all. To be sure, the Foreign Office issued a statement that there is no "Prince of Baluchistan," but that did no harm; the public insisted on regarding him as a potentate and agreed he was traveling incognito. They lionized him and wrote about him.

Now that Joe is back in New York, where he is known, he is thinking of opening a restaurant of his own.

reaching in rapid succession the 17, 14 and 12-yard lines. They are playing with remarkable vim, and are fairly running over the Mailes. Four more plays and the ball travels to the 10, 9, 7 and 6-yard lines.

With six more minutes to play the Mailes get the ball on their 5-yard line and take it to their 10, 14, 21 and 31-yard lines. A 15 yard penalty against the Punahous places the ball on the Mailes' 4-yard line. Punahous shove it back three yards, and Mailes carry the ball to their 47-yard line. Mailes lose the ball on their 49-yard line and Soper kicks to the 15-yard line. The ball is taken back to the Mailes' 25-yard line, and the Punahous get hold of it. Soper is sent through to the 30-yard line, and then a yard farther. Punahous force the ball to the 16-yard line and the Mailes get a 10-yard penalty given against them for off side play. Punahous press their claim to the 5, 4 and 3-yard lines, and seem certain to score, when the whistle puts a stop to the game, which ends in a tie.

The crowd throngs the field and overwhelms the players with congratulations. Cheers are given for each team, and the field rapidly empties.
